Ruger lcp 2 magazine problems

I have a LCP II that I just bought second hand. Firearm came with 3 Ruger magazines from the first owner. The magazines have a little bit of wiggle room when seated in the pistol. They appear to not seat all the way up in the mag well. Having some feeding issues as well as the slide not locking back on empty. Problems appear to be solved if I consciously hold the bottom of the mag to keep it seated higher. Is this a common problem? Possible solutions? Just picked mine up yesterday and I've noticed a few small things and am just wondering if anyone else is experiencing them or if it's just me. When I do a press check with a round in the chamber the slide doesn't slide all the way back. I have to manually push it in. This only happens with a round in the chamber. The magazine requires quite a bit of force to load correctly. If you just gently push it up it sticks out. This doesn't happen when inserting an empty magazine. Only fully loaded. I never had an issue like this on my LCP II. Those magazines slid in effortlessly. This is in regards to the finish. In less than 12 hours I developed a shiny spot just above the magazine release on both sides. Left side, and right side. I am using an older Kydex holster that I had for my LCP II, so I'm guessing it's possibly from going in and out of that but I never had this issue in years of my old LCP II being inserted and removed from the same holster. Thanks to anyone that has any input. Edit - post range trip - Unfortunately after my first trip to the gun club both issues #1 & 2 still persist. 1) The press check issue isn't so much of an issue since as I've said in the comments I don't really do it, it's just something I noticed. 2) I hope over time the magazines will go in easier as some have suggested is common in new magazines. Now for the good news. I put 200 rounds of Fiocchi FMJ and also 50 rounds of Fiocchi XTP hollow point, my carry round of choice. Not one malfunction or issue of any kind. No issue of the slide not locking back on last round as others have mentioned. Very decent groupings at 7-10 yards. Edit after 6 months - Some have commented asking about these so I'll just add an updated edit in February 2022. Issue #1 - It still persists. Not an issue for me as I don't press check but it definitely still does it. Issue #2 - I've found this doesn't happen if you make sure the last round in the magazine is pressed all the way back. If it moves forward slightly it will cause this issue of having to slam the magazine in for it to seat properly. So this one was probably on me all along. Issue #3 - I sent my Max into Ruger and they cerakoted the slide and frame. I had to go back and forth w/ them on the frame as they were reluctant at first to cerakote anything but the slide. However, I still don't use my old LCP II Kydex holster in fear that the rub marks will appear again. As of now I'm using a softer IWB holster by Houston. It was the only other holster I could find that covers the mag release button. Some may not care about this but for me it's a must. I'll probably go back and try my Kydex in the future as I feel it's more secure than the Houston. More important than scuff/rub marks.
